

Optimized baseline model for predictive accuracy and biological plausibility which need to be verified with separate experiments

Baseline model modifications become a test bench for

Moving from an autoregressive to a generative model

Testing novel, biologically-inspired learning strategies for energy-efficiency and complex problem solving

Encompassing gating “dendrites” (GLU+DTNs) to examine whether they can filter out irrelevant information and improve complex problem solving ability of the model